A Rare Rural Estate on Portugal's Alentejo Coast

Monte do Pego Estate is a 50.05-hectare rural landholding located in São Domingos, in the municipality of Santiago do Cacém, on Portugal's Alentejo Coast — approximately 30 minutes from the Atlantic beaches and 90 minutes from Lisbon Airport.

The property forms Parcela A of the larger "Pego" estate (c. 124 ha in total), which was physically divided by the EN261 national road and formally recognised as two distinct parcels through a certidão de divisão de facto issued by the Câmara Municipal de Santiago do Cacém in May 2026. Parcela A — the subject of this Memorandum — is a self-contained, cork-oak covered landholding with frontage onto the EN261.

The estate combines a productive cork oak "montado" with meaningful, though not yet formally licensed, development potential under the Santiago do Cacém Municipal Master Plan (PDM), which permits rural tourism uses on this land subject to the completion of the formal licensing process. This combination of recurring agricultural character, scale, and location makes the estate a distinctive proposition for investors seeking a long-term rural or hospitality-oriented asset on the Alentejo Coast.

Investment Highlights

- Freehold rural estate of 50.05 ha, legally recognised as an independent parcel following the May 2026 certidão de divisão de facto.
- Located within one of Europe's fastest-growing luxury coastal tourism regions, close to Comporta, Melides, and the Tróia peninsula — the Alentejo was Portugal's fastest-growing region for tourism overnight stays in 2025 (+6.3% year-on-year per INE).
- Existing cork oak ("montado de sobro") forest, a recognised long-term agricultural asset in the Alentejo, with related eligibility for EU agricultural (CAP) support.
- Rural tourism development potential confirmed in principle by the Santiago do Cacém Municipal Council, subject to completion of the formal licensing process (see Section 03).
- Direct frontage onto the EN261 regional road, with good accessibility to Santiago do Cacém, Sines, and the wider Alentejo Litoral.

Registry & Cadastral Position

The original property, with a total registered area of 1,238,750 m² (c. 123.9 ha; 1,241,300 m² per topographic survey), is inscribed in the rustic tax register (matriz rústica) under article 12/13, section HH, and in the urban tax register (matriz urbana) under article 145/197.

A Framework Confirmed, Licensing Pending

In February 2025, the Câmara Municipal de Santiago do Cacém issued a "Informação Prévia Simples" — a preliminary, non-binding technical opinion — in response to a request concerning the maximum buildable potential of the original "Pego" estate under the Municipal Master Plan (Plano Diretor Municipal, PDM). This is an important preliminary step, but it is not a granted building permit, an approved subdivision (loteamento) for construction purposes, or a formally binding Prior Information Request (PIP) decision.

According to that opinion, and calculated on the basis of the estate's registered area, the applicable PDM parameters allow for the following, subject to the completion of a formal licensing process:

USE	PDM BASIS	MAX. BUILDABLE AREA
Rural Tourism — Casas de Campo / Agroturismo	Art. 35º PDM (10% of rustic area, capped)	4,000 m² gross construction
Rural Hotel (Hotel Rural)	Art. 35º PDM (15% of rustic area, capped)	6,000 m² gross construction
Existing dwelling — conservation/reconstruction	Art. 31º/34º PDM	Up to 500 m²
Agricultural outbuildings	Art. 32º PDM	Up to 12,387.5 m² (whole estate)
Maximum impermeabilisation (tourism)	Art. 35º PDM	247,750 m² (whole estate)

Because these percentage-based caps are reached well below the area of Parcela A alone, the 6,000 m² Hotel Rural ceiling and the 4,000 m² Rural Tourism ceiling apply in practice to Parcela A on a standalone basis as well as to the estate as a whole.

Planning conditions to note

- The land is classified as rústico (rural) and lies partly within Reserva Agrícola Nacional (RAN) and Reserva Ecológica Nacional (REN) — new construction must sit outside these areas or obtain the relevant favourable opinions.
- The estate is crossed by a medium-voltage (30 kV) electricity line and by the EN261, both subject to non aedificandi servitude strips.
- The property sits mostly within mapped forest area (COS 2018) with pockets of high wildfire risk; new buildings must respect a 50-metre safety setback from adjoining forest land, and construction is prohibited in high/very-high fire-risk zones.
- Any cutting or removal of cork/holm oak requires prior authorisation from the ICNF (Instituto da Conservação da Natureza e das Florestas).
- Under Article 17(5) of the RJUE, works following a favourable prior information decision must commence within two years.

Next step. The natural next stage is the submission of a formal Pedido de Informação Prévia (PIP) or direct licensing application for a specific architectural concept (boutique hotel, wellness retreat, or nature resort), which would convert this preliminary framework into a binding planning decision.

The Alentejo Coast, Portugal's Emerging Luxury Destination

São Domingos sits inland from Portugal's Alentejo Coast, within the municipality of Santiago do Cacém, one of the country's fastest-growing luxury tourism regions — home to Comporta, Melides, and the wider Costa Vicentina. The estate combines rural privacy with practical access to the coast, regional towns, and two international airports.

DESTINATION	APPROX. TRAVEL TIME
Santiago do Cacém	15 min
Sines	25 min
Atlantic Coast beaches	30 min
Melides	35 min
Comporta	50 min
Beja Airport	55 min
Lisbon Airport	90 min
Faro Airport	90 min

Travel times are indicative estimates by car and should be verified for a specific planning exercise.

A Region on a Confirmed Growth Trajectory

Independent tourism statistics and market research support the underlying thesis for a rural/nature hospitality development on the Alentejo Coast:

National & regional tourism demand

Portugal's tourism sector reached historic highs in 2025, with 82.1 million overnight stays nationally (+2.2%) and 32.5 million guests (+3.0%), according to INE preliminary data. The Alentejo was the fastest-growing region in the country, posting the largest annual increase in overnight stays of any region (+6.3%) — accelerating to +7% in the fourth quarter of 2025 — ahead of the Setúbal Peninsula (+4.7%) and the North (+4.5%). Non-resident overnight stays in the Alentejo rose even faster in several recent months, including a +7.2% increase in December 2025 and +6.9% in August 2025.

Rural tourism & agrotourism

Turismo de Portugal and INE data show that Turismo em Espaço Rural (TER) establishments grew by more than 600% between 1990 and 2019, with related overnight stays rising from roughly 61,000 to close to 2 million over the same period. Agrotourism has been one of the fastest-growing sub-segments, expanding from around 5% of TER supply in 1989 to approximately 17% today. The Alentejo is the second-largest demand region for agrotourism in Portugal (c. 24.8% of demand), behind only the North.

Coastal Alentejo hospitality & real estate

Industry advisers (including Athena Advisers and Engel & Völkers) describe Comporta and Melides, a short drive from the estate, as having overtaken the Algarve as Portugal's leading prime coastal destination, with average asking prices up by roughly 20% over five years and continued international demand from UK and US buyers. The hospitality pipeline in the wider region remains active into 2026–2027, with new openings such as Quinta Amala (Melides), Sublime Comporta Villas, NUMA Comporta, and — notably — Torre Vã in Ourique, a rural "herdade" converted into a five-star rural hotel, illustrating market appetite for exactly this kind of estate-to-hospitality conversion in the wider Alentejo.

Figures are third-party estimates provided for general market context and should be independently verified.

A Working Cork Oak Estate

The Caderneta Predial Rústica confirms that Parcela A is predominantly covered by "Montado de Sobro ou Sobreiral" (cork oak montado), complemented by areas of arable culture (Cultura Arvense) and scattered olive trees (Oliveiras). Cork remains one of the Alentejo's principal agricultural exports, and mature montado land of this kind is typically eligible for the EU Common Agricultural Policy's area-based direct payment schemes, in addition to any income generated from periodic cork stripping.

Note: the fiscal "rendimento" figures shown on the Caderneta Predial Rústica reflect notional tax-assessment values used to calculate the IMI property tax base, not actual market cork revenue or subsidy income. Prospective investors should request the owner's recent cork-harvest and CAP subsidy records, where available, to assess actual recurring income.

07 — INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS & RISKS

Key Points for Due Diligence

- Planning risk: the development potential described in Section 03 rests on a preliminary municipal opinion, not a granted licence. Achieving a specific hospitality project requires a further, formally binding planning and licensing process, with associated time and cost.
- Environmental constraints: partial overlap with RAN, REN, and mapped wildfire-risk zones will influence where and how any construction can be sited.
- Servitudes: the EN261 road and the 30 kV power line crossing the estate carry non-buildable safety strips that reduce the effectively developable footprint.
- Title verification: an updated Certidão Permanente should be obtained immediately prior to signing to confirm current ownership and the cancellation of historical charges referenced in Section 02.
- Cross-border considerations: foreign investors should take independent Portuguese legal and tax advice regarding acquisition structure (personal vs. corporate vehicle), NHR/tax residency implications, and any applicable AIMI/IMI property taxation.
